

About the Course

This PAMIS course introduces the learner to the Intensive Interaction approach which can be used with children and adults who have profound learning and multiple disabilities (PMLD), and other difficulties which can make the person “hard to reach”. As a result people with PMLD can be very socially isolated. The Intensive Interaction approach can be used in many settings to support communication and inclusion.

The course aims to develop an understanding of the communication process, the theories which underpin intensive interaction, and helps the learner facilitate its’ practical implementation.
